The One King Worthy Of Worship

Jason Hardin

Psalm 72 is "of Solomon," a prayer to God for the king.

Give the king your justice, O God, and your righteousness to the royal son! (72:1)

Hope is expressed that the king would rule in the right way:

May he judge your people with righteousness... (72:2)

May he defend the cause of the poor... (72:4)

May he be like rain that falls on the mown grass... (74:6)

In his days may the righteous flourish... (74:7)

Petitions are made for the boundaries of his reign to increase:

May he have dominion from sea to sea... (72:8)

May all kings fall down before him... (72:11)

Even his health and legacy are prayerfully considered:

Long may he live... (72:15)

May his fame continue as long as the sun! (72:17)

And yet, 3,000 years after Psalm 72 was written, we continue to have periodic reminders: righteous or wicked, kings don't reign forever; adored or despised, queens pass from this life. The sun eventually sets on every fragile reign as human rulers "go the way of all the earth" (1 Kgs 2:2).

But before Psalm 72 concludes, our attention is drawn higher. "Blessed be the LORD, the God of Israel, who alone does wondrous things. Blessed be his glorious name forever; may the whole earth be filled with his glory! Amen and Amen!" As kings pass and queens fade, One never changes or weakens. The Lord our God the Almighty reigns today. What a privilege to come before his holy throne in worship!

In spite of his extraordinary physical strength, there was at least one sense in which Samson was “like any other man.” Judges 16 describes his involvement with a third Philistine woman named Delilah (16:4-6). Notice his increasingly dangerous responses to Delilah’s repeated enticements:

- “If they _____ me with seven fresh bowstrings...” (16:7)
 - “If they bind me with new _____...” (16:11)
 - “If you weave the seven _____ of my head...” (16:13)
 - “If my head is _____...” (16:17)
- “...then I shall become weak and be like any other man.”

In spite of his extraordinary physical strength, Samson was remarkably “like any other man.” How so?

- Can a man carry _____ next to his chest and his clothes not be _____?
- Or can one _____ on hot coals and his feet not be _____? (Prov 6:27-28)

Whoever you are, you are “like any other man” in that:

- You will be _____ (James 1:14)
- Your temptations aren’t _____ (1 Cor 10:11-13a)
- Your Creator is _____ (1 Cor 10:13b)
- There is always a way of _____ (1 Cor 10:13c)
- You aren’t immune to the catastrophic _____ of sin (James 1:15)
- You can be _____ (Eph 2:1-10; Rom 6:3-4)
- You can be _____ than Samson (Eph 6:10-11)
