A Servant Who Will Be Greatly Missed

Jason Hardin

Last Sunday morning, I was blessed with the opportunity to preach about what it looks like to have the heart of a servant. I obviously had no idea at the time that four days later, one of the most humble, diligent servants in our church family would finish his earthly service and go on to his eternal reward.

Shannon Shaffer had the heart of a servant. He and Dana have been great encouragers and comforters to so many of us. Shannon devoted much of his life to preaching the word of God. He served as a shepherd of this church family for the last two years and three months. When there was a need, Shannon could be counted on. Before most of us recognized the need, Shannon already had his hands dirty. He had a heart for you. He had a heart for the lost. He had a heart for teaching, and some of his greatest teaching was done through his example.

For many years, Shannon wrote a bulletin and blog called LifeLine. We are reeling today in the wake of his passing. We feel death's sting and our hearts ache for Shannon's good family. But thank God we do not have to grieve as those who have no hope, because Shannon had a lifeline. His name is Jesus, the one who taught in John 12:26, "If anyone serves me, he must follow me; and where I am, there will my servant be also. If anyone serves me, the Father will honor him." May Shannon's example of a race well run inspire us all to live with the hearts of servants.
