A New Welcoming Window

Jason Hardin

Do you ever check out hotels or restaurants online before you visit? Most of us use websites and social media to “peek through the window” of a place before we decide whether or not to show up. The vast majority of people do the same thing before they visit a church. “When do they meet?” “What’s it like inside that big building?” “What should I expect if I visit?” You’ve probably asked the same sort of questions. Study after study reveals that upwards of 90% of people visit a church’s website before attending in-person.

Next Sunday morning, you’ll see a couple of cameras around our church building. We’ll be shooting footage for a new welcome video that will serve as a centerpiece of our website and social media channels. We all recognize when literal front doors and windows look inviting, don’t we? Think of this video as a welcoming window for potential guests and a tool you can use to invite others to visit with us.

The earliest Christians were taught to think ahead about the “outsider” who might visit one of their assemblies (1 Cor 14:23-25). Paul described the faith of Christians in Thessalonica as “going forth everywhere” (1 Thes 1:8). We want the same to be said of us, and this is one more tool we can use to strive for that goal. So next Sunday, please do your best to ignore the cameras and just be yourselves. We’re blessed with a wonderful church family at Charlestown Road. Our lives are being transformed by the gospel and we want everyone to hear the good news about Jesus!

To our guests...
