The One King Who is Worthy of Worship
Jason Hardin

Our daily Bible reading schedule has produced quite a contrast in recent weeks. On most weekdays, we've been reading through the history of the kings in ancient Israel and Judah. It's not the most encouraging section of Scripture, primarily because of the quality of the kings involved. Scene after scene, chapter after chapter we read the same sad refrains: "He did what was evil in the sight of the LORD." "He did not depart from all the sins of Jeroboam." "He walked in the way of the kings of Israel." Here and there we get small glimpses of faithfulness in the lives of men like Asa, Jehoshaphat, Hezekiah, or Josiah, but they only lived so long. A different influence briefly stems the tide, and then the king dies. Small reforms are made, the king dies, and the flood of unfaithfulness returns to rise even higher. So why spend valuable time wading through the historical sludge of idolatry, bloodshed, stubbornness, and covenant failure?

At the same time, we're also reading the Gospel of Luke, the good news revolving around a very different kind of King. He is gentle and lowly in heart. He was tempted in every respect as those kings of old were (and we ourselves are), yet without sin. He came down from heaven, not to do his own will, but the will of his Father, for the good of the world. He touched the untouchable, noticed the outcast, joyfully welcomed the attention of children, and exhausted himself in the service of the unworthy. He died as the Lamb provided by God for the sins of humanity and was raised never to die again. He is exalted in heaven as King of kings and Lord of lords. He rules over a kingdom not of this world and never to be destroyed. He is the one King worthy of worship, and that's our blessed opportunity today. We're glad you're here. Let's honor him today and live for him this week.

Philippi, a Roman colony in northern Greece, was the first city in Europe where news of “the way of salvation” was shared in the name of King Jesus (Acts 16:6-15).

- Approximately 12 years later, Paul writes a letter to “all the _____ in Christ Jesus who are at Philippi, with the overseers and deacons” (Phil 1:1).
- Were there some in Philippi who remembered the night Paul and Silas had spent in prison (Acts 16:16-40)?
- Now the saints in Philippi have received a letter from another prison (Phil 1:7), a letter full of joy.

A sense of belonging that brings joy to the journey

- A blood-bought, grace-filled connection to King _____ (1:1-2)
- Fellow partakers with each other of _____ (1:7)
- _____ in the gospel (1:5)
- The sacred privilege of _____ for each other (1:3-4, 9a)
- The assurance that God is not just a starter, but a _____ (1:6)
- Growing together in the journey toward the day of Christ (1:9-11)
 - In ever-abounding _____ that overflows with _____
 - In wisdom that guides in paths of moral _____
 - Filled to overflowing with the fruit of _____ living
 - All _____ King Jesus, to the _____ and praise of God

Joy is found in walking with Jesus, wherever the path leads. Because he is with us and he is our destination, we can have joy, whatever we experience along the way. Our joy is rooted in him. The fruit is grace and partnership in the gospel.
